

Students Attend Young Writers' Conference

Last Updated Tuesday, May 25 2010 07:21

Six students from Lincoln Elementary attended the Young Writers' Conference at St. Ambrose University on Tuesday, May 18. Students were recommended by their sixth grade language arts teacher based on creative writing projects submitted this school year. The conference included entertainment by improvisational actors, an opportunity to share their writing with other students from different schools, and a session on ways to improve writing.
